ESTABLISH THE FIRST COURT ORDER FOR CHILD SUPPORT

CHECKLIST

You may use the forms and instructions in this packet if . . .

- ✓ You want a court order to establish child support and do not already have one, AND
- ✓ You already have or do not need to establish an order for legal decision-making (legal custody) or parenting time (visitation) at this time, AND
- ✓ You are the natural or adoptive parent, the legal guardian, or have a court order awarding you legal decision-making, OR
- ✓ You are providing support for or have physical custody (possession of the child(ren) of the other party, OR
- ✓ You are legally married to the other parent and you understand that using this packet will NOT result in a court order for legal decision-making (legal custody), parenting time, or spousal maintenance (and you can only request a court order for all of the above as part of a legal separation or divorce), OR
- ✓ You are not married to the other parent and are seeking support from the other parent and paternity has been legally established by either:
 - A court order establishing paternity, OR
 - The father's name is on the child's birth certificate because, at the time the child was born or afterwards, both parents signed an affidavit acknowledging paternity; AND
- ✓ You know the name and address of the other party or where the person can be found, so the court papers can be personally served on him or her.

WARNING: If someone other than you has court-ordered legal decision-making (legal custody) or if there is an existing child support order involving the same children for whom you are now trying to establish support, you may need to file papers to modify that order instead.

READ ME: Consulting a lawyer before filing documents with the court may help prevent unexpected results. A list of lawyers you may hire to advise you on handling your own case or to perform specific tasks, as well as a list of court-approved mediators can be found on the Law Library Resource Center website.
